

Visiting churches

Churches and churchyards are literally 'treasure houses' of history, full of ancient carvings both in stone and timber, traces of wall paintings, green men, weird and wonderful roof bosses, gargoyles and dripstone heads, Royal coats of arms, funerary hatchments, tombs and monuments, stained glass windows, fonts, parish records, regimental flags, and so on.

The architecture of churches is fascinating. Very few ancient churches are built in the style of one architectural period, and their history can be traced through the jigsaw of architectural styles that can be 'read' to interpret the age of each part.

There are around 10,000 churches of medieval origin in the UK. They were all built for the same purpose, but no two are the same. Each church is new experience, and is often different at every visit.

Rotherham is home to a wonderful variety of churches, from all architectural periods. This guide offers a selection of those in the grand north of the borough, and a taster of what each has to offer.

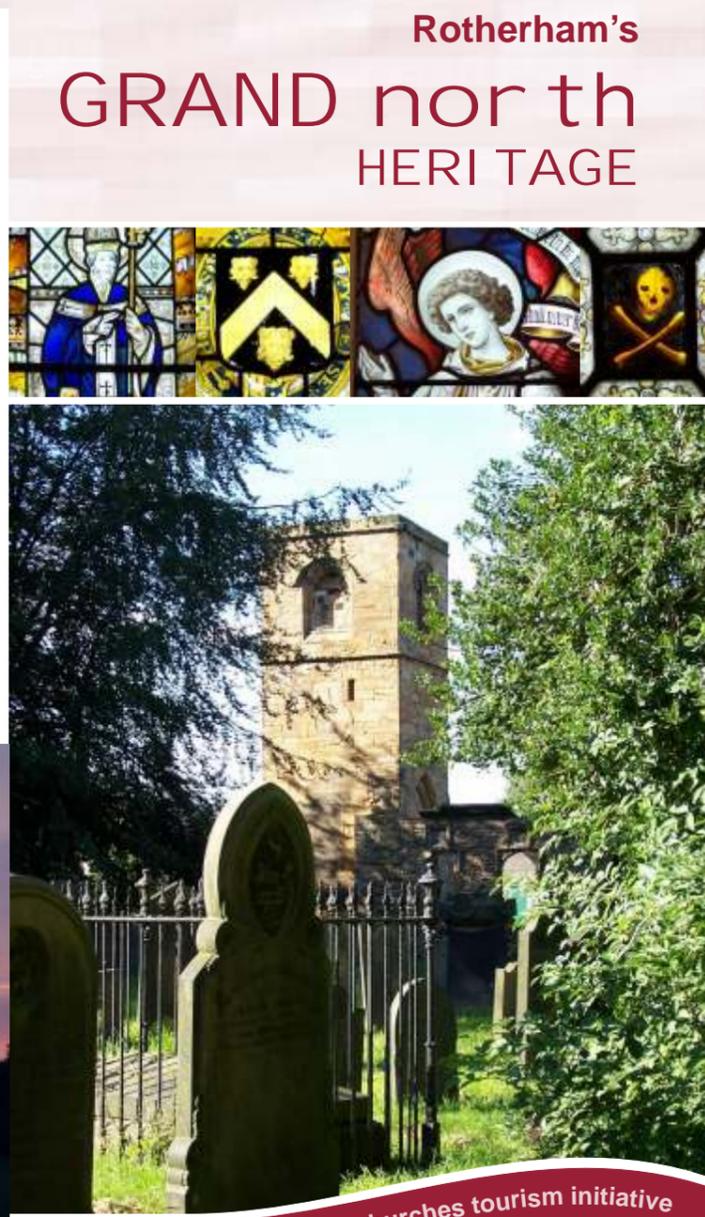

You will find further information at each church in the form of leaflets, exhibitions and guidebooks.

Enjoy your visit!

Brampton christ church

Christ Church is a splendid Victorian church, built in 1855 to cater for a growing mining population. Built in the decorated style, the church windows all have delicate and unique tracery and beautiful stained glass, by Kempe and Whitefriars. The tower can be seen for miles.

Inside there is an intricately carved and painted oak rood screen, with the figures of Jesus, Mary and St John. The church is decorated with carvings of angels and other faces. One pillar has a carving of a cow's head peeking through foliage, with a milkmaid on the other side!

West melton urc church

The church was founded in 1796 and is an attractive Grade II listed building, situated in a semi-rural area. The building has some wonderful original Georgian features, including door columns and dentil moulding.

The church interior was based on the original puritan thinking and has little decoration. It has a large gallery and interesting pews and seats. The church also has a large churchyard (rare for a URC church), with many fine monuments and memorials.

Wath all saints

All Saints is a spectacular village church, with much to see. There are visible remains of the Norman church, dating from around 1150, including the steep-pitch roofline. The Lady Chapel was added around 1300 and includes five original Norman carved stone heads.

Inside, the church is beautiful. All Saints has an impressive collection of painted roof bosses, dating back to the 16th century. They include faces resembling animals and humans, and many show a tongue sticking out.

There also many interesting monuments and memorials in the church and churchyard, including the top section of the original church spire!

Wentworth follies

In the lovely village of Wentworth you can also see Wentworth Woodhouse. This impressive country house, once home of the Earl Fitzwilliams, has the longest frontage in England.

Around the house are a number of 'follies', which can be seen from the road or footpaths.

Swinton st margaret

St Margaret's is a large Early-English style parish church, standing high on a hill above the village. The tower dates from 1817, although the rest of the church was rebuilt after a fire in 1897. Behind the church are the remains of the original Norman chapel.

The church has a soaring hammer beam roof above a tall clerestory and wide aisles. There is beautiful stained glass in traceried windows and in the nave are 'Stations of the Cross'.

Wentworth old church

Believed to have early medieval origins, with mouldings dating back to the late 13th century, Wentworth Old Church fell into disuse after the new church opened.

The church is home to an impressive collection of elaborate 16th and 17th century monuments to the Wentworth family, including wonderful carved effigies. The churchyard contains many fascinating gravestones, dating back to the 17th century.

Wentworth Old Church is cared for by The Churches Conservation Trust and contains an interesting exhibition of local photographs and objects.

Wentworth holy trinity

The magnificent neo-gothic church of 1877, designed by JL Pearson, was built by the 6th Earl Fitzwilliam to replace the old church nearby. It is 120ft long and its spire reaches almost 200ft.

The church's outstanding features include a finely carved reredos, oak furnishings, attractive interesting memorials and fine stained glass. There is also an original Father Willis organ.

The churchyard contains some interesting gravestones and to the south lies the Fitzwilliam family private burial ground. The churchyard is surrounded by a Ha-ha to keep farm animals and deer out.

Church Lane, Greasbrough

The skyline of Greasbrough is dominated by the pinnacled tower of St Mary's. This fine Gothic-style church was built in 1826. Its huge windows, light stone construction and limed woodwork make it light and airy.

St Mary's contains some interesting features, including a Jacobean carved font cover, once belonging to Rotherham Minster.

Hooton Roberts st john the baptist

This very pretty small church sits overlooking the hamlet of Hooton Roberts. It has strong links with the Wentworth estate and members of the family are buried in the church.

Parts of the original Norman church can still be seen, as can an ancient lancet window. The prominent tower is 15th century.

There is a rare example of 13th century stained glass, showing an Archbishop.

The church contains a large carved coffin lid from about 1200, and some interesting memorials.

Thorpe hesley holy trinity

Holy Trinity is an impressive Victorian church, built between 1837 and 1839, on land given by Earl Fitzwilliam of Wentworth.

The church is spacious and wide. The windows are tall and light, with little stained glass. There is a fine oak reredos with carved panels showing the instruments of the Passion, and an unusual marble pulpit. The churchyard contains a fine listed war memorial.

Parts of St Leonard's date back to 900 AD, including a blocked doorway in the south nave wall.

Much of the structure is Norman, with the tower and window arches dating from the 1400's.

The church contains many fine memorials, with wonderfully elaborate carving and decoration. They include an Elizabethan memorial to the Reresby family showing eight sons and ten daughters!

There is also some beautiful 14th century stained glass.

Ravenfield st james

Although not the first church on this site, St James' was designed by John Carr in 1756. It is a fine example of Georgian architecture, and still contains the original gallery from this period.

The church contains a fine collection of hatchments and memorials, with painted and carved images. The tower has an unusual spirelet and ogee arch windows, and houses a unique one-fingered clock.

The old churchyard around the church contains old pedestal tombs, table tombs and memorials, and an area kept aside for wildlife.
